

“Chaleur Humaine”

The link:

<https://podcasts.lemonde.fr/chaleur-humaine>

SHORT DESCRIPTION

“Chaleur Humaine” is a weekly podcast from Le Monde, hosted by journalist Nabil Wakim. Each Tuesday, the show features experts and practitioners who explore the challenges of climate change and discuss actionable solutions. Topics range from sustainable mobility and energy transition to behavioural shifts and biodiversity preservation, aiming to provide listeners with insights and strategies to address the climate crisis.

SUGGESTIONS

The podcast “Chaleur Humaine” from Le Monde can be a powerful tool to enrich learning and discussion around green entrepreneurship. Its expert insights on climate challenges can help participants identify real-world problems and inspire entrepreneurial solutions. Educators or facilitators can use episodes to frame design challenges, explore leverage points in systems, or spark brainstorming for green business ideas. Activities might include thematic listening with reflection, debates and role plays to deepen understanding of social and environmental dynamics. The podcast also complements theoretical content on sustainability. It offers practical context and innovation opportunities.

KEY WORDS

- Green business
- Sustainability
- Environmental challenges
- Social Impact
- Eco innovation

LANGUAGES

French.

PRICING

The podcast “Chaleur Humaine” is free.